CORE COMPETENCIES

920th RESCUE WING

AIR FORCE RESERVE COMMAND

“The privilege of absolute confidentiality in communications with chaplains belongs to the client (you), not to the chaplain.

There are no circumstances where a chaplain can disclose information revealed in the practice of his or her ministry without the client’s (your) informed permission. Similarly, Air Force Authorities will never require a chaplain to disclose privileged information for any reason whatsoever.”

While you are away from us on deployment, know that you have not left our hearts or our prayers. As you serve our wing, the United States Air Force, and your country, we will constantly be thinking of you and your loved ones. As you do your duty, we will be doing ours—praying for your peace, health, joy and happiness, and we will be looking forward to your safe return to us and to your families.

STAYING CONNECTED

Blessings & Peace from your Chaplain Staff!
We consider it our calling and a privilege to serve both you and your families!
